

MEMORIAL DAY and the grand procession are the theme of every tongue. It will be, perhaps, the most memorable occasion in the history of our city.

THE mayor of Pensacola offers a reward for the author of the statement that two deaths from yellow fever had occurred in that city. We hope he will be rewarded and made an example of.

THE grateful enthusiastic citizens of Little Rock yesterday observed the anniversary of Grant's restoration of Baxter as governor of Arkansas, by firing of cannon and general rejoicing.

THE Fall Mill Gazette says that Russia is annoyed at England's persistent refusal to participate in the St. Petersburg conference, and the English statesman, and intends giving the force of the law to the Brussels conference, negotiating separately with the powers to induce their adherence thereto.

COUNTY authorities will do well to take notice and govern themselves accordingly. The Savannah News relates that some time ago the county commissioners of Glynn county, Georgia, leased land for the purpose of building a new courthouse and jail, and for making other improvements. These securities were for the most part negotiated in Savannah. In the absence of any provision on the part of the commissioners to pay the interest on these obligations as they fell due, suit was brought in the United States circuit court, and on Saturday last Judge Enklie issued a peremptory writ of mandamus requiring the commissioners to levy a special tax upon the property in Glynn county this year sufficient to pay all costs and twenty-five per cent of the judgment, and the same for each succeeding year until the debt is cancelled.

ON Monday next, the twenty-fourth instant, according to the terms of an advertisement by the trustees, the water-works-machinery, pipes, building, grounds and franchise will be sold to the highest bidder. It is a rare opportunity for capitalists here offered in this city. As we learn from the books of the company the net cost of the works was four hundred and nine thousand five hundred and forty-two dollars and thirty-six cents, and the annual income from the works is estimated at nine thousand dollars, the estimated net profit being sixteen thousand dollars, and the city owning forty-three thousand dollar, which of course will be turned over to the purchasers. The advertisement of sale, which has appeared in the Appeal for some weeks, has attracted the attention of capitalists abroad, and we should not be surprised if the bidding was spirited. At three hundred thousand dollars cash the works are a bargain, such as does not offer even in these days of depreciated stocks, and at any less price could not be regarded as a great sacrifice. They ought to be owned and worked by the city, and the city is too much embarrassed to engage in an extensive purchase, we think our capitalists should come together and make a company to buy and run them. There is a big profit awaiting the capitalist to save from the clutches of foreign speculators. The net profit of the works should be owned in Memphis.

THE reception and ovations which awaited the arrival of Ex-President Davis in Houston, Texas, are an account of which we publish in another column, were worthy alike of the recipient and the people who thus testified their esteem and respect for one of the ablest statesmen of his time, a man to whose genius for government and great executive ability we owe the continued existence for four years of a Confederacy that was for the last two, to use Grant's words, nothing but a shell. It will be seen that Mr. Davis quite met the anticipations formed of him by the people of Texas, and that in all the speeches and addresses which he called upon to deliver, he impressed himself upon those who heard him as quite up to the high mark he attained to years ago, when he entered the United States senate and upheld himself the peer of the ablest in that illustrious body.

THE cheer of the Texans were no doubt grateful to the heart of the ex-president, who never more entitled himself to the applause of the whole south than when he urged it upon the veterans of the "Stars and Stripes" as they had to the flag that was furled forever. Mr. Davis, in this, as in all his other public appearances, was in perfect accord with the public opinion which he had won, and that we all, both north and south, bend our energies for the good of the whole Union.

ON Tuesday night next Messrs. White and Bliss, noted evangelists, who have made so glorious a record in their revivals in Nashville and elsewhere, will begin a series of meetings at the Great-Lake Operahouse, which we have no doubt will be attended by our people, regardless of sect, to an extent more than equal to the capacity of even the very large house. The pastor of the local Protestant churches, and the hearty interest in promoting the successful reorganization of these meetings, which we are sure to gather a momentum that will be felt by the entire community. Whether we believe in revivals or not, in their efficacy for lasting benefit in personal and social life, it is a fact that no series of such meetings could be held in any large city without accomplishing great good—if in nothing else, in an increased inquiry into religious truth. We believe we can claim with truth that the ministers of Memphis, of all religions, are a laboring body of men, and that they are each in his allotted sphere doing good work. They are submitting as teachers and in pastoral visitations, but do not think themselves above the assistance which Messrs. White and Bliss will give in arousing the whole people to a sense of their obligations and a wider recognition of the importance of church organizations. In the enlarged view of the good these noted evangelists do, we welcome them to the city, and trust that Memphis will be added to the list of their triumphs.

AT the recent convention of Baptists held at Charleston, South Carolina, Rev. G. A. Lofgren, of this city, offered the following preamble and resolutions: Whereas, It is understood to be the desire of the Southern Baptist publication society, located at Memphis, Tennessee, to establish a Southern Baptist Review; and whereas, the proposition of the said society has been favorably received by resolutions unanimously adopted in the conventions of Tennessee and Georgia, therefore

Resolved, That it is the sense of this body that such publication, properly conducted, would be useful, and without assuming any responsibility in regard to it, we should be glad to see the brethren throughout the south subscribe to such a review if undertaken.

In support of his resolution, Mr. Lofgren declared any intention of drawing

HON. JEFF. DAVIS.

The Reception of the Ex-President at Houston—Ovation and Honors Worth the Great Chief—His Addresses and Speeches.

Reception—The Leading Statesmen and Public Men of Texas Present—Advice to the Veterans to be Loyal to the "Stars and Stripes."

Speeches to the New Orleans (Houston) Convention.

General Sherman has written and published his memoirs. An extensive and very partial review of the work has appeared in the New York Herald, from which we gather that the general has given the two characteristic volumes, of which we have heretofore said something to say. The Herald says that Sherman's "judgments of his colleagues and antagonists are frankly expressed. He does not value Hooker's courage or genius. He thinks Logan and Blair were 'political' generals, brave enough, but fighting for generalship. He concedes great merit to Grant, but thinks he was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

THE Ovation.

Houston, May 11.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, in delivering the opening address on the occasion of the inauguration of the sixth annual State fair of Texas, occupied the platform for Davis was slow. McClellan made a mistake in not going into camp and studying army tactics instead of remaining in the unhealthy luxury of Washington. He esteems Joseph E. Johnston, but actually thinks Jefferson Davis capable of having planned Lincoln's assassination. His opinion of Mr. Stanton is severe and decisive, going so far as to state that he was a party to a fraud upon the treasury, by removing the marks from some of the cotton notes. The courage of expressing these opinions now no one will question, no matter what we may think of the wisdom. They will certainly lead to discussion and acrimony. No harm will result in this country. It is believed, after all, that the truth be known. General Sherman had much better say what he thinks now, than the men he criticizes can answer him, than to leave it for fifty years, until all the parties are dead and the truth beyond discovery."

HERNANDO.

Memorial Day—How It was Observed—Colonel Tom White's Oration and the Reception of the Veterans.

From an Occasional Correspondent.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

ARREST OF SALE.

First for an Injunction Granted by Chancellor Morgan Restraint on the Sale of the Green.

Yesterday Chancellor Morgan, of the first chancery court, granted a fiat for an injunction upon the petition of Walter A. Gooden, of this city, against the sale of the Green.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

THE Ovation.

Hernando, Miss., May 14.—The thirteenth of this month of months will be remembered in the history of Hernando for the success of our efforts to celebrate Memorial day. The balm of cold snaps and unseasonable spells as we have had, brought our people to town in crowds. Farmers came in, driving wagons, and by eleven o'clock the mass of folk and array of vehicles was quite exciting. Then came the slow march of the beautiful procession, the decoration of the graves, and the unveiling of the splendid monument to the fallen soldiers of the great Civil War.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!

AT LOWER PRICES!

B. LOWENSTEIN & BROS.

Now in receipt of an entirely new line of

LADIES' LINEN SUITS, LAWN SUITS AND ORGANDIE SUITS.

Manufactured in the latest styles for our own special trade. We can, therefore, confidently assure our customers that we will sell them at lower prices than any other house on the continent.

MISSES' AND CHILDREN'S PIQUE DRESSES.

In most attractive variety at extraordinarily low prices.

LADIES' UNDERWEAR!

The best goods at lower prices than ever before offered in Memphis. Good 12-inch skirts of best MUSLIN handsomely made at 75¢ each. All other Underwear proportionately cheap!

Parasols! Parasols! Parasols! Parasols for the Million!

We offer all the latest styles at the lowest prices.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!</